

Prof. ALEXANDER BROADIE

Council from 2016

Alexander Broadie was raised in Edinburgh, and educated at the Royal High School and at Edinburgh University (MA philosophy). After a period of study at Balliol College, Oxford, he joined the philosophy department at Glasgow University. He holds a PhD and a DLitt from GU, and a doctorate honoris causa from Blaise Pascal University (Clermont-Ferrand). The Royal Society of Edinburgh appointed him Henry Duncan Prize Lecturer in Scottish Studies (1990-1993) and in 1991 elected him FRSE. He is now emeritus professor of logic and rhetoric and an honorary professorial research fellow at GU, where he works on the Scottish philosophical tradition, a field in which, over the past three decades, he has written or edited about twenty books.